KYLE GOOD

Kyle Good, 51, died Jan. 23, 2004, at his home in Cozad, Neb. Services were held Jan. 26 in Cozad with burial in Walnut Grove Cemetery. He was born Aug. 7, 1952, in Sheridan to Leroy and Marie deFlores Good. He graduated from high school in Douglas and attended University of Wyoming. He worked in the oil fields in Wyoming in the field of seismology. He was later employed with the Pinkerton Agency in security in Wyoming and Denver. After returning to Douglas, he married Geri Gawryl on Jan. 5, 1995. The couple worked in property management at First Interstate Inn at North Platte, Neb., and at the Days Inn in Ogallala and Lexington, Neb. In 1999 they moved to Cozad where he was employed with Nebraska Plastics and later with Orthman Manufacturing at Lexington. His lifetime interests included fishing, airplanes and yard work. He had also done volunteer work with Habitat for Humanity. Survivors include his wife, Geri, of Cozad; son Justin Taylor of Laramie; daughter Joleen Good of Gillette; daughter Reanna Caves of Douglas; mother Marie Good of Denver; sisters Gayle Good and Jeri Lee Good of Denver, Karen Savage of Casper and Jo (Dean) Feaster of Greenville, S.C.; three step-grandsons; and three step-granddaughters. He was preceded in death by his father. Berryman Funeral Home of Cozad was in charge of arrangements. For memorial information, contact the funeral home at (308) 784-3000.

Read more: http://www.genealogybuff.com/wy/wy-converse-obits3.htm#ixzz5Xuphcr3q